

Professional Skills for the Modern Workforce

22 - 23 March 2010

Venetian Hotel, Macau

A two day conference and workshop in association with UK Trade & Investment showcasing the UK professional, technical and vocational education market to an invited audience of decision makers, corporate trainers, institutions and agents.

The conference will highlight

- the UK's use of industry-driven curriculum and its contribution to individual employability
- the need for the TVET sector to redress the global focus on academia, which is not fully addressing global skills shortages
- the role of technical vocational and professional education in creating a fairer more cohesive society.
- practical examples of good practice in UK in hospitality construction tourism and motorsport

UK delegates will be able to

- promote their institution to a range of potential customers from the Asia Pacific region
- work with educational agents to recruit students
- meet with institutions to discuss in-country deliver partnership opportunities
- network with the region's education community

Who should attend?

- UK colleges and training providers seeking transnational education partnerships and agent links in the Asia Pacific region
- awarding bodies looking to enhance the global recognition of their qualifications
- equipment and materials suppliers looking to support the education process

The event is free to TVET UK members. Non members will be required to complete a £500 OMIS request to UKTI as payment. Hotel accommodation will be discounted by the organisers for all delegates.
